111 HIGH STREET

This large brick late Federal or Greek Revival style house, built sometime around 1849, was "Victorianized" in 1859 by the addition of an elaborate scrollsaw porch with iron finials. Greek Revival features of the house are the long narrow windows, and the end hall, double parlor layout. The first floor celings are all twelve and one-half feet high. The house was built by Dr. James A. Muse who acquired the property from the wife and children of the deceased Governor Charles Goldsborough. It was later the birthplace of Phillips Lee Goldsborough, governor of Maryland from 1912 to 1916.

This large, late Federal or Greek Revival style house, built sometime around 1849, was "Victorianized" in 1884 by the addition of an elaborate scrollsaw porch, the roof of which has ornate wrought iron The rear ell wing was added around 1890. house is two and one half stories high with a gable roof and center gable, with a bullseye window. On each side of the center gable is a gabled dormer. There are three bays across the front and the windows are all six over six sash with decorated (Greek Revival) stone caps. Between the first and second story windows are recessed panels. A polygonal bay window has been added on the south facade. interior layout consists of an end hall which opens to two large parlors on the north. Separating the two parlors are large sliding paneled doors. Each parlor has a fireplace with a marble mantel, and an oval shaped plaster medallion in the center of the ceiling. The windows have paneled recesses. ceilings are all twelve and a half feet high and the floors are Georgia pine. The house and surrounding vard are well maintained.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

History:

In March 1849, Mrs. Charles Goldsborough and her children (the widow and heirs of Govenor Charles Goldsborough) sold this lot to Dr. James A. Muse who erected the present brick mansion. Dr. Muse died in 1867 and the property was then sold to Mrs. Mary Ellen Goldsborough, wife of the late William T. Goldsborough of Harris Point, eldest son of Governor Goldsborough. In April 1874, Mr. and Mrs. Goldsborough sold the property to Mrs. Nettie M. Goldsborough, wife of paymaster M. Worthington Goldsborough, U. S. Navy. Their son, Phillips Lee Goldsborough, who was later to become a U. S. Senator and Governor of Maryland, was born in this house. In January 1886, the property was sold to Barnard Hornebach, who died in 1892, leaving it to his wife Henrietta. After her death, the property was sold to Miss Lizzie K. Muse, and her sister Mrs. Julia M. Henry.

Significance:

This house retains a number of Greek Revival features such as the long narrow proportioned windows with decorated caps, the recessed panels above the first floor windows, and the plan and layout. The most striking feature of the house, however, is the 1880's vintage porch, with elaborate brackets, cut-outs and so forth. This is one of the most interesting houses on High Street, which possesses many houses of architectural interest, dating from prior to the Revolutionary War to the early 20th century.

111 HIGH STREET CAMBRIDGE, MARYLAND

Change reference to: W/R Real Inventory APM 5/135 and Distribution Account MCL 7/221.

The land where this house now stands, like the lot of 107 High Street, was once owned by Governor Charles Goldsborough. He died in 1834, leaving the land to his wife Sarah Y. Goldsborough and their children. In 1849, they sold this lot to Dr. James A. Muse, physician and brother to Dr. Joseph E. Muse (see Appleby). Dr. Muse erected the original part of this house the same year. On his death the house was sold to Mrs. Mary Ellen Goldsborough, a dauthter-in-law of the deceased Governor Goldsborough. In 1874, Mrs. Goldsborough sold the house to Mrs. Nettie M. Goldsborough, wife of M. Worthington Goldsborough and mother of Phillips Lee Goldsborough, who was later Governor of Maryland (1912-1916) and United States Senator (1929-1935). It is often asserted that he was born in this house, but that is most unlikely, since he was born on August 6, 1865 or nine years before his parents bought thehouse. Moreover, no Goldsborough owned the house until 1868. Bernard Haineback, a German immigrant who owned a clothing store in Cambridge, purchased the house in 1886. On his death in 1892, his daughter sold the house to Mrs. Julia M. Henry and Miss Lizzie K. Muse, who owned it until 1912. The house changed hands several times in the twentieth century until Mrs. Mildred W. Webb, mother of the present owner, acquired it in 1939. Mrs. Webb was the wife of P. Watson Webb, who published the Cambridge Daily Banner and the Record.

The structure retains a number of Greek Revival features such as the long, narrow, proportional windows with decorated caps and recessed panels above the first floor windows. A striking feature is the 1880's Victorian porch with its elaborate brackets and cut-outs. Several additions have been built to the house in the later nineteenth century. The mansion is significant for its striking architecture and for its association with the prominent Goldsborough family of the Eastern Shore. That family was socially and politically influential in Maryland from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries.
